PARTNERSHIP FOR THE FUTURE of LEARNING

THE BIG PICTURE FOR 2020

One Network . Three Priorities

The Partnership is poised to meet this moment deliberately and collaboratively, with energy and force. As a network committed to a long-term vision that brings together racial equity, meaningful teaching and learning, and public education, we have great potential to play an important role in upcoming changes for public systems. Many network partners are already moving into action, and this network is prepared to serve a connecting and amplifying role to heighten the impact of our partners and bring into focus the renovation of the public education system that is both urgently needed and tactically possible right now.

Community Schools are an affirmative and solutions-based response to critiques of public education. The Partnership is connecting up the efforts of partners through story sharing, public relations, policy change efforts, and building support with parents and legislators.

Economic uncertainty paired with the push toward privatization calls this network to work towards equitable education resourcing by activating a shared, collective response and point of view around public dollars are spent.

Diverse, prepared, and supported pre-K-12 educators are the cornerstone of advancing student-centered, deeper learning and the focus of local, state, and national work of many within the Partnership's network. A time of deep appreciation for teachers is a good time to embed a commitment from parents and families to support future policy change that will support teachers.
